1996 FINAL HOUSE VOTING RECORD

Prepared by:
AFL-CIO Legislation Department
Peggy Taylor, Director

1996 Final House Vote Descriptions

1. Immigration/Farm Workers — In an effort to create another “bracero” program, big agribusiness backed an amendment to an immigration bill, H.R. 2020, to allow companies to import hundreds of thousands of foreign, temporary farm workers. Farm Workers’ and government reports found there was no current or expected future shortage of agricultural workers and showed the so-called guestworker program would likely take jobs from current workers, depress wages and diminish working conditions. The amendment, opposed by the AFL-CIO, failed March 21 by a 180-242 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 23-165; REP: 157-76)

2. Immigration/Guestworkers — Another provision of the immigration bill called for allowing more H-1B foreign, temporary guestworkers into the country. H-1B workers are skilled workers, such as computer programmers. Some hi-tech employers have imported such workers to replace U.S. workers at drastically lower wages and without benefits. The AFL-CIO argued that employers should be prohibited from laying off U.S. workers and replacing them with H-1B workers and should be required to recruit and train U.S. workers to fill jobs. The Federation backed a motion to send the immigration bill back to committee with instructions to include new provisions protecting U.S. workers. The motion failed March 21 by a 188-231 vote. Y=R, N=W (DEM: 173-12; REP: 14-219)

3. Medical Savings Accounts — Affordable, accessible and quality health care has long been an AFL-CIO priority. But instead of improving health care, H.R. 3103 included provisions allowing the creation of Medical Savings Accounts. The MSAs would be used primarily by the wealthy who could afford to set aside portions of their income--tax free--in MSAs. Most working and poor families would be unable to take advantage of the scheme. Wealthier families already enjoy top-flight health care, and as a result, better health. MSAs would leave a sicker and poorer client population for other insurance mechanisms, and raise the cost for those who could not afford MSAs. The AFL-CIO supported a motion to strike the MSA provisions from H.R. 3103. That motion was defeated March 8 by a 182-236 vote. Y=R, N=W (DEM: 178-9; REP: 3-227).

4. Housing/Family Rent Cap — For decades, rent for public housing tenants was capped at 30 percent of their adjusted monthly income. But a provision of the 1996 Housing Act (H.R. 2406) called for elimination of the cap. Without the 30 percent cap, rents could be raised beyond the means of lower-income families who rely on public housing. That’s why the AFL-CIO supported an amendment to retain the cap, but to allow public housing authorities to design programs to encourage tenants to work, such as lower rents through earned income credits. The amendment failed May 9 by a 196-222 vote. Y=R, N=W (DEM: 178-11; REP 17-211)

5. Minimum Wage/FLSA — In the 1996 fight to raise the minimum wage, GOP leaders threw up many road blocks in an unsuccessful attempt to halt the AFL-CIO’s drive to boost the pay of minimum wage workers. One amendment would have blocked the minimum wage increase and stripped Fair Labor Standards Act protections from more than 10 million workers in businesses with less than $500,000 in annual revenue. The amendment failed May 23 by a 196-229 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 7-185; REP: 189-43)

6. China MFN — Under both Democratic and Republican administrations, the AFL-CIO has opposed Most Favored Nation trading status for the People’s Republic of China. In 1996, the Federation backed a resolution (HJR 182) to deny continuation of China’s MFN privileges. China’s abysmal record on human rights, its ban on independent trade unions and the use of forced labor to produce and export goods all justify MFN denial. The resolution was defeated June 27 by a 141-286 vote. Y=R, N=W (DEM: 75-119; REP 65-167)

7. OSHA/Ergonomics — One of the major targets of House Speaker Newt Gingrich's (R-Ga.) Contract on America and war on workers in 1996 was workplace safety and OSHA. Ignoring facts that show repetitive stress injuries hurt and cripple millions of workers each year, Republican leaders wanted to prevent OSHA from issuing new ergonomic standards to prevent RSIs. They also wanted to ban the safety agency from gathering information about RSIs and how to prevent them. The AFL-CIO backed an amendment to the FY 1997 Labor/HHS appropriations bill to strip that anti-OSHA rider from the bill. The motion passed July 11 by a 216-205 vote. Y=R, N=W (DEM: 180-10; REP: 35-195)

8. Education and Training — Republican leaders continued their attacks on education and training funding in the FY 1997 Labor/HHS appropriations bill by cutting or providing inadequate funds for those programs. In 1995, they sought to cut $10 billion from student loan programs but were blocked. An amendment to add $1.2 billion to the bill for dislocated worker training, summer youth jobs, Head Start, Goals 2000 and student loans failed July 11 by 198-227. Y=R, N=W (DEM: 195-0; REP: 2-227)

9. Comp Time — Another major component of the 1996 war on workers was the drive to let employers eliminate overtime pay for work after 40 hours a week. A bill (H.R. 2391) to gut the Fair Labor Standards Act work week protections by allowing employers to substitute comp time for time-and-a-half overtime pay won the backing of big business and their congressional allies. The bill gave lip service to voluntary agreements between the workers and employers, but most of the control was left in the hands of the boss. Penalties against employers for violations were weak and meaningless. Working families that depend on overtime to make ends meet would see their incomes reduced. The bill passed the House July 30 by a 225-195 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 14-175; REP: 211-19)

10. Welfare Reform — While the AFL-CIO has been a long-time supporter of practical and innovative ways to move people from welfare to work, 1996's welfare reform legislation (H.R. 3734) was not welfare reform but budget cutting at its worst. Most of the money saved by the bill came from slashing the food stamp program and assistance to legal immigrants. Without granting Fair Labor Standards Act protections for people in forced workfare programs, private and public employers could eliminate decent paying jobs with health and pension benefits and replace them with workfare workers earning subminimum wages. The legislation was approved July 31 by a 328-101 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 98-98; REP: 230-2).

11. Federal Express — Federal Express, a generous campaign contributor to many lawmakers, was the beneficiary of some back door politicking in the FAA reauthorization bill (H.R. 3539). When the bill was reported from a House-Senate conference it contained a provision to cover Federal Express under the rules of the Railway Labor Act, which requires system-wide organizing rather than the National Labor Relations Act, which allows organizing on a site-by-site basis. Neither the House- nor Senate-passed bills had contained the Federal Express provision and congressional conference rules normally don't allow the addition of new provisions, but GOP maneuvering circumvented the rules. The AFL-CIO opposed the conference report, which was approved Sept. 27 by a 218-198 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 19-167; REP: 199-30).

104th CONGRESS

1996 FINAL SENATE VOTING RECORD

Prepared by:
AFL-CIO Legislation Department
Peggy Taylor, Director

1996 Final Senate Vote Descriptions

1. Medical Savings Accounts — The Health Coverage and Affordability Act (S. 1028) makes it easier for workers to carry their health insurance from job to job (portability) and harder for insurance companies to deny coverage for pre-existing conditions. But it does not address the need for broader health care reform. The AFL-CIO opposed the Medical Savings Account provision in S. 1028. MSAs would be used primarily by the wealthy and healthy, leaving a sicker and poorer population to be covered by other insurance mechanisms--creating a tax benefit for the wealthy and driving up health care costs for working families. An amendment to strike the provision was passed April 18 by a 52-46 vote. Y=R, N=W (DEM: 47-0; REP: 5-46)

2. Davis-Bacon — The Republican leadership attack on working families took aim at construction workers' paychecks and the Davis-Bacon Act. The act ensures that workers on federal construction projects receive the local prevailing wage. This prevents contractors from slashing wages in order to win federal contracts with low-ball bids. Many lawmakers have called for the act's repeal. An amendment was offered to the FY 1997 Budget Resolution to express the sense of the Senate that the Davis-Bacon Act should not be repealed. Anti-worker senators made a motion to table, or kill, the amendment, but that motion failed May 22 by a 41-59 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 1-46; REP: 40-13)

3. Minimum Wage — The value of the minimum wage had fallen to a 40-year low in 1996, yet Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole (R-Kans.) refused for months to bring a minimum wage bill boosting the wage from $4.25 to $5.15 to the floor. A massive AFL-CIO-led grassroots campaign mobilized public opinion and forced the Republican leadership to allow a vote on the measure. But in one last attempt to scuttle the bill and appease their big business backers, Republican leaders offered an amendment that would have gutted the pay raise by delaying the increase for six months, creating a subminimum wage for new hires and denying the pay hike to some 10 million workers in smaller businesses. That amendment failed July 9 by a 46-52 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 0-47; REP: 46-5)

4. National Right to Work Law — When Republicans took control of the Senate in the 104th Congress, Sen. Majority Leader Bob Dole (R-Kans.) promised the extremist National Right to Work Committee a vote on legislation establishing a federal right-to-work (for less) law. The bill would have repealed the section of the National Labor Relations Act that allows states to determine their own laws on union security agreements and replaced it with a federal mandate banning such agreements. Proponents failed to mention that none of the 21 states with right-to-work laws ranks above the national average in pay. The AFL-CIO and affiliated unions brought more than 1,000 workers to the Capitol steps and the Senate hallways, and staged a call-in campaign that produced tens of thousands of angry calls. That pressure helped defeat the motion July 10 by a 31-68 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 0-47; REP: 31-21)

5. TEAM Act —The TEAM Act, strongly backed by big business, is a head-on assault on workers' rights. It would deny the right of workers to pick their own representatives for employee/employer committees, many of which deal with workplace issues such as wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment. In effect, it could lead to the creation of "company unions." The bill's backers claimed it was needed because current law forbids such committees. But some 30,000 employers have established worker/management teams and the National Labor Relations Board rarely objects. The bill passed the Senate July 10 by a 53-46 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 2-45; REP: 51-1)

6. Welfare Reform — The AFL-CIO supports moving people from welfare to work, but the welfare reform (H.R. 3734) considered in 1996 does not do that. The bill's cuts in food stamp and assistance to legal immigrants were projected to push 1 million children of working parents into poverty and deprive hard-working families help in times of need. It also creates the potential for large-scale job displacement in the public and private sectors. The "workfare" provisions could penalize low-wage unskilled workers by forcing them to compete for jobs with welfare recipients earning subminimum wages. The conference report on the bill passed the Senate August 1 by a 78-21 vote. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 25-21; REP: 53-0)

7. Federal Express — Federal Express, a notoriously anti-union corporation, was the beneficiary of some back door politicking in 1996. When the FAA reauthorization bill (H.R. 3539) was reported from a House-Senate conference, it contained a provision to cover Federal Express under the rules of the Railway Labor Act, which requires system-wide organizing, rather than the National Labor Relations Act, which allows organizing on a site-by-site basis. Neither the House- nor Senate-passed bills had contained the Federal Express provision and congressional conference rules normally don't allow the addition of new provisions, but GOP maneuvering circumvented the rules. A filibuster against the bill because of this provision was defeated when the Senate voted 66-31 for a cloture motion that ends a filibuster on Nov. 3. Y=W, N=R (DEM: 17-29; REP: 49-2).
